Europe-wide solutions and services for packaging licensing and the take-back of waste of electrical and electronic equipment and batteries

Meeting legal take-back obligations throughout Europe

Internationally operating companies must fulfil their take-back obligations in accordance with the legislation in force in the respective country.

With the implementation of the EU Packaging Directive 94/62/EC as well as the Directives 12/19/EC for waste electrical and electronic equipment and 2006/66/EC for (used) batteries and (waste) accumulators, manufacturers and importers are obliged to organise the return and recycling of their packaging in accordance with the relevant national legal provisions of the individual EU countries and to take back and recover their electrical equipment and batteries.

A legally compliant approach is complex and requires extensive know-how in practice. Numerous legal texts in 20 different languages do exist, together with individual regulations (e.g. minor quantity limits) and over 200 different take-back systems. In addition, there is no unified Europe-wide reporting and registration system. Therefore, there is a high risk of unintentional breaches of the law and associated sanctions for the obligated parties.

We provide competent support in the implementation of your legal obligations in alle EU countries as well as Norway and Switzerland.

We take over for you:

- the analysis and evaluation of the obligations based on your data provided
- the selection of the appropriate country licensing and take-back system based on your quantities placed on the market, including notification, registration and annual updates
- handling of the entire contract management and the corresponding correspondence with the foreign systems
- the implementation of the legally required, timely quantity reports and further reporting
- the identification of open issues and developing measures to maintain your compliance

Your advantages:

- you have only one service provider for up to 30 countries in Europe
- you do not need to worry about capacities, expertise, linguistic complications or misinterpretations
- and you save a lot of time for your core business!
